Jess wins a new Apple iPad

When Narrabri High student, Jess Kennedy, read in The Courier that Santos was giving an iPad to the winner of its Explore the Site competition, she was eager to be in the running. Jess visited Santos' new community website and found the answers to the questions posed in the competition.

Jess then dropped into Santos' Maitland Street shopfront on her way home from school on Friday, just in time to drop off her entries before the competition closed.

Not knowing the name of their young visitor, but seeing how enthusiastic she was about the competition, the Santos team invited Jess to come back and witness the draw and see how she fared.

Jess returned with her mum, Sue, just in time for the 4.30pm draw. By that stage Narrabri Rotary club president Bruce Pyke, had arrived to officiate and the Santos team was busy transferring the hundreds of entries received into a big blue bucket and giving them a good mix.

Jess and her mum Sue couldn't contain their excitement when Mr Pyke drew out the first entry with all answers correct and announced Jess Kennedy as the winner. The Santos team were equally delighted to find the winner was not only extremely pleased, but also in attendance.

"It was one of those really lovely coincidences," said Santos' Senior Advisor Community Relations Vesna Rendulic.

"We didn't know Jess' name, but just the look on her face when she was drawn as the winner was absolutely priceless."

The next five correct entries drawn each received a $50 gift card from the Crossing Theatre. They were Nimrod Mor, Shona McFarland, Jim Hunt, Kelly Wu and Janet Dampney.

"We were already thrilled with the large amount of community support for this competition and would like to thank all those who entered," said Ms Rendulic.

"Many people who handed in their entries said that they enjoyed finding out more about the project through the new website www.narrabrig-asproject.com.au. To have such an excited winner was just the icing on the cake for us".
